

The Awakening of the Dreamer

By Derrick J. Johnson

AuthorHouse. Paperback. Condition: New. 176 pages. Dimensions: 8.0in. x 5.1in. x 0.4in. The Dreamer is Dead . . . But He will Dream a New Dream, One Last Dream Tonight . . . The Awakening of the Dreamer is a riveting and emotional journey through the eyes of a young Generation X poet. This book of poetry features four collections of poems, which were written from 1989 to 1994. The first collection, Ocala, is themed around the embracement of child like fantasies coexisting with harsh realities. This collection features poems such as Dance of the Snake, Dont Let them Win, and the timeless love epic, Indompte Amour. The second collection, Haiku Fu, is a full throttle embracement of the Japanese poetic art form, which features poems such as Ireland and The Crimson Flower. The next collection, The Bonfire, is regarded by many as Johnsons most aggressive work to date. The Bonfire addresses political and social themes, such as racism, dysfunctional families, and apathy, and features poems such as Unbroken Chains, Civil War, and Men Dressed in Black. It also includes the 1991 epic poem, The Bonfire, which follows the tragic rise and fall of an unknown dreamer. The final collection, Twilight,...
