Gleadowe is to take the Command while at Bluefields, to see that Mr. Parke carries on the Business he is intrusted with, such as the Batteries on the Bluff and Island, the Huts for the Soldiery, for Hospitals, and other purposes to hold about 1,500 Men. When these Matters are put in train, Capt. Gleadowe with Mr. Parke may explore Bluefields river, in order to ascertain how far we may be able to ascend so as to get as near as possible to a town called Mena, on the Lake of Nicaragua, and the distance of the river to that place, and the difficulties attending a March through the Woods. If the minds of the Indians can be conciliated, Negroes be obtained, and such difficulties not very great, the General wishes the road to be opened. Messrs. Pitt, Grant, Wood, and Bigby, or...
