The masses completely filled the big public square. The flaring torches, placed at set intervals, lighted fitfully the faces of the people-faces sober, earnest, thoughtful-all turned in the direction of the speakers platform. Mr. Peter Conant, the Chairman, a prominent attorney of Dorfield, was introducing the orator of the evening, Colonel James Hathaway, whose slender, erect form and handsome features crowned with snow-white hair, arrested the attention of all. You have been told, began the old colonel in a clear, ringing voice, of our Nation s imperative needs. Money must be provided to conduct the great war on which we have embarked-money for our new army, money for ship-building, money for our allies. And the people of America are permitted to show their loyalty and patriotism by subscribing for bonds-bonds of the rich and powerful United States-that all may participate in our noble struggle for the salvation of democracy and the peace of the world.
