Our dining room is a thing of beauty and a joy forever, and it looked especially gay that night with its decorated tables and gay faces about them. Helen Ely made a splendid toastmistress and Mabel Douglass gave us some sound advice in her toast The Relationship of the Alumnae to the Active Chapter. Marian Davis gave a clever toast, The Significance of the Social Hour, and Pauline Kleinstiick spoke well on Gamma Phi National Spirit. December twelfth was the occasion of our annual Christmas party. The fun began when we were surprised at dinner by finding at each place a Christmasy box of candy tied with red ribbon and holly, the gifts of Pauline Kleinstiick. The party dinner and the holly decorations made us feel as if Santa Claus had arrived earlier than he was scheduled for. We were destined to be further surprised that night for our freshmen announced to our great astonishment that they would entertain us with two plays. Of course, we rather expected something unusual from such enterprising freshmen. This explained those secret meetings which they had been holding during the preceding week. If you had been here you could appreciate our pride in our freshmen. Such talent as was displayed in the two dramas presented under the management of Sarah Hineks! We began to...
